Eaton Guilty; Sentence Is Suspended.

Minor Eaton, arrested in connection with the Carrie Shull case, entered a plea of guilty Tuesday before Judge Jones. A plea for a suspended sentence on the part of his attorney caused the Prosecutor to offer some evidence to show that Eaton had been frequenting Eleanor Endsley's place, now under arrest on a charge of keeping a disreputable house and that he kept company with persons of bad reputation. Eaton testified as to his relations with the Shull girl and that the advances came from her. Judge Jones in passing sentence of from one to five years in the penitentiary and then suspended it upon the good conduct of the prisoner said that he was confident that Eaton had not been responsible for the girl's downfall. Had he been so the pleading of attorneys, wife and children would avail nothing. Eaton will be photographed, measured, and placed under the care of the penitentiary warden though he will have the liberty of a paroled prisoner.

CLEANING THE STREETS.

The streets have been cleaned the past few days under direction of the street committee and everything is in readiness for the oil, which should have been here last week being delayed enroute. It is expected that some repairs can be made in filling the holes with crushed rock. The condition of the village finances will not stand much of a draw.

Gas Company Repairing Lines.

The Ohio Fuel Supply Co., has a force of more than 100 men making repairs on the main line. Last Sabbath the gas was shut off in town most of the day while the line was lowered beneath the county ditch on the Frank Townsley farm. South of town the line was opened to put in a new gate. People were not aware that the roaring early last Sabbath was from the gas main. Thousands of feet of gas was wasted in the twenty miles of open pipe. By the new management gates have been put in so that repairs can be made in most cases without turning off the gas. Next Sabbath repairs will be made near the railroad but only Wilberforce will be without gas for the day.

The large force of men necessary for this improvement and the waste of gas in the line means quite an expenditure to the company. But expense is not an item to be considered when the service is to be improved. Few communities have better gas service the year round than this one.

Endsley Case Is Postponed.

The case of Eleanor Endsley, charged in Probate court with keeping a house of ill fame, has been postponed until June 30, it having been first set for Wednesday.

The other cases of Minnie Hamilton and Nettie Reed on similar charges will be heard on Thursday and Friday. It is said that more than fifty witnesses have been called.

C. M. RIDGWAY SUCCESSFUL

Induced Dr. Howard Co. to Make Special Prices.

After a great deal of effort and correspondence C. M. Ridgway, the popular druggist, has succeeded in getting the Dr. Howard Co. to make a special half-price introductory offer on the regular fifty-cent size of their celebrated remedy for constipation and dyspepsia.

Dr. Howard's remedy has been so remarkably successful in curing constipation, dyspepsia and all liver troubles that C. M. Ridgway is willing to return the price paid in every case where it does not give relief. Headaches, coated tongue, dizziness, gas on stomach, specks before the eyes, constipation and all forms of liver and stomach trouble are soon cured by this scientific medicine. So great is the demand for this remedy that C. M. Ridgway has been able to secure only a limited supply, and everyone who is troubled with dyspepsia, constipation or liver trouble should call upon him at once, or send 25 cents and get sixty doses of the best medicine ever made, on this special half-price offer with his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

A Greater Cedarville College.

All things that contribute to a greater Cedarville will be welcomed by every good citizen. The announcement of the campaign for a two-hundred thousand dollar endowment for Cedarville College ought to be good news to every citizen who has the highest interest of our village at heart. Our town and community have just right to be proud of our college and doubtless will take delight in doing all they can to place it among the colleges of front rank.

The work of Cedarville College in contributing to our citizenship compares favorably with any college of its size and with many far larger. Its list of graduates as well as others receiving only a partial education in its halls is a matter of congratulation to the college, and rejecting to our community. Cedarville and its community have benefited directly from every view-point by the twenty years' work of the college. Financially, intellectually, morally and spiritually the college has been and is a blessing to this town and community. Its value to our citizenship has grown as the years have come and gone.

The college has been handicapped by a lack of accommodations for students. It needs dormitories and a science hall. The gymnasium needs equipment. The endowment is one hundred and fifteen thousand dollars short of the required amount to give the standing in the Ohio state association of colleges. Recent years have shown great progress in Cedarville College, but the immediate needs must be met at once and in a masterly manner by this town and community if the college is to continue its life and work in Cedarville. The one hundred and fifteen thousand dollars additional will place Cedarville College among the recognized colleges of Ohio and the nation. It will be the best means to enlist the interest of moneyed people outside of Cedarville not only in the College but in all the best interests of the town. It will enable the Board to increase the faculty, widen the courses of study, and attract a larger attendance of students. It will be a multi-millionaire and it will do something for Cedarville College when the people of Cedarville and its community prove to me by their contributions that they want Cedarville College to live and to live among them but not kill them.

The value of Cedarville College to this town and community and its work in the past are too important to allow the college to lag or what is even worse to be removed from Cedarville. Now is the time to wake up, face the situation, and rise to the crisis. Do you want Cedarville College to continue its work here or go elsewhere?

CHURCH SERVICES.

U. P. CHURCH

Sabbath, June 14, 1914
"A Children's Day Service" will be given Sabbath morning, June 14. The Sabbath School and church service will be merged into one and commence at 10 a. m.

An interesting program of splendid music, interspersed with exercises by the children, will be given, entitled "Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven". Following the exercises an address will be given by Dr. W. R. McChesney.

It is the desire of the committee that every S. B. scholar be in their place at 10 o'clock sharp. They also urge every member and adherent of the church to be present at the service. And as you read this can you not think of some one you would like to invite to worship with us at this time and thus make a record for "A go to Sabbath School Day".
I am going. Are you?

Very Old Custom.

The custom of saying "God bless you" to a person when he sneezes originated among the ancients, who, fearing danger from it, after sneezing made a short prayer to the gods, as "supper help me". The custom is mentioned by Homer, the Jewish rabbis and others. Polydore Vergil says it took its rise at the time of the plague in 558, when the infected fell dead, sneezing, though apparently in health.

Clifton U. P. Church Chimes.

Blessed is the man whose calendar includes prayer meeting night.

No loving word, was ever spoken, no kind deed ever performed to-morrow. To-day is the time to act.

Orland Ritchie is taking a course in agriculture with Mr. Frank Turner.

Mr. Ed Corey and Dr. Ritchie attended the Boxwell commencement at Husted last Thursday evening.

There were 14 delegates from Clifton at the county Sabbath School Convention, given from each church. Mr. Frank Turner very kindly assisted our delegates by taking his auto.

The Sabbath School continues to grow slowly. Let everyone lend a helping hand and we can reach the 300 mark by and by. How we wish you had been at the convention.

The W. M. Society will meet at Mrs. J. M. Waddie's next Wednesday. Leaders: Misses Carrie Rife and Helen Bradford.

Mr. Fred Harris and Miss Anna Wright were married June 8, at the home of the bride's mother. Their pastor, Rev. C. M. Ridge, officiating. They will reside at the James Finney farm east of Clifton.

Mr. Frank Skillings and her mother, Mrs. Campbell, are enjoying a visit from a brother and son, Ross Campbell, of Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. Albert Ferguson has been absent in Texas on a business trip for some days.

Mr. O. E. Bradford was elected secretary of the Board of Trustees of Cedarville College at its recent meeting.

We hope for your presence at the communion service Sabbath morning. We are commended to "do this in remembrance of Jesus."

Blessed are those who appreciate the wisdom of training the youth of our generation in the way of truth and righteousness; and who give their personal and practical support to the divine work of the Bible School.

Blessed are those who use their influence for the salvation of souls and thus "cover a multitude of sins."

For successful Bible study there are four conditions: Submit, admit, transmit, transmit. You must submit yourself to the teaching of God's Spirit; you must admit the truth into mind and heart; you must commit its words that they may remain in the memory and aid pass on to the life; you must transmit its teaching to others and thus multiply its influence.

Helen Bradford is leader for the Christian Union Sabbath evening. School has closed and we hope for a large attendance from now on through the summer. The theme for study is "How employers and employees should work together."

Rev. A. Hamilton, pastor of the M. E. church, will preach Saturday at 3 p. m. in service preparatory to the communion.

A friend, seeking light, sends us this question: "Is not the large amount of money spent by Christians for foreign missions practically wasted? Could it not be spent to better advantage here at home?"

We are delighted to answer this question. In the first place, Christians do not give any large amount of money for foreign missions. Let us study some comparative figures that are declared by specialists to be correct. During the last year for which we can get statistics there was paid in the United States for foreign missions $7,500,000; for jewelry, $80,000,000; for confectionery, $18,000,000; for tobacco, $940,000,000; for liquor, $1,744,447,000.

Are we waiting any amount of money on foreign missions? When the church sends out a foreign missionary it is in obedience to the command of its Lord, who said: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." It is also in obedience to the spirit of the Golden Rule, which says: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." It is also in payment of a long-standing debt that we send missionaries abroad. Honorable men ought not to forget that it was a foreign missionary who carried the tidings of Christianity to their forefathers. Had it not been that others believed in foreign missions, we ourselves would be heathen to-day, and our fathers would have died without the blessed hope.

Primary Entries Closed Thursday

The closing of the entries for the August primaries was Thursday from senator, governor down to all county officials and committeemen. It will be the first time that all parties will make all nominations by direct vote of the people and not by conventions.

Petitions have been in circulation in this county and in this district for Hon. M. R. Denver as district committeeman on the Democratic side. An effort was made several weeks ago to get Wilmington's leading citizen to contest for a congressional seat again but there was absolutely nothing doing. It is said that Mr. Denver has had all the Washington life he cares for and would not take another term if it were offered without opposition and all expenses paid. His selection as district committeeman is almost assured on past and present popularity.

According to press dispatches the Hon. Jesse Taylor of Jamestown is to be a candidate on the Progressive ticket for congress in this district. The announcement comes as quite a surprise in that many thought that Congressman Fess would not have more than Democratic opposition in a district 10,000 Republican. Mr. Taylor twice appeared before the people for this same honor in the hands of the Republican party but each time factional strife left its influence to M. R. Denver. Mr. Taylor to-day is in better graces of the people than when he made his memorable campaign on the platform of all things to all men. Since then he has done excellent work for the cause of good roads and this will no doubt be a strong factor in his behalf. Four and six years ago a lot of people were carrying clubs and hand axes to scalp anyone that opposed Jesse. Now that he is in another party we are anxious to see what these same people will have to say concerning one they professed to admire so well. The campaign will soon be near and the Herald expects to be vindicated from some "regulars" at least.

Being Agreeable.

Some true and being agreeable is to appear well pleased with all the company, and rather to seem well entertained with them than to bring entertainment to them. A man thus disposed may have no rich learning nor any wit—but he has common sense and something friendly in his behavior, it conciliates men's minds more than the brightest parts within his disposition.—Addison.

RECEIVES STORE AS A GRADUATION GIFT.

C. W. Ridgway, son of B. G. Ridgway, Ohio and Valley Streets, Dayton, was graduated last Thursday in pharmacy, from Ohio Northern university at Ada. He is 21 years of age and as a suitable graduation gift his father generously turned over the well known store to his son. The senior Ridgway will operate another store. Mr. Ridgway secured unusual honors at Ada receiving two degrees upon graduation, Ph. L. and Ph. G.—Dayton Herald.

Committees For Chautauqua Campaign.

The executive committee for chautauqua week, of August 24, had a meeting recently and several important committees were arranged for, though the membership of each has not been completed.

The committee on grounds and concessions, S. O. Wright, J. W. Johnson and A. Z. Smith, has secured the athletic field on the college campus. There is good water and in case of severe storm the college could be used for shelter and protection. This committee has charge of the concessions.

The ticket committee, chairman is O. L. Smith and it is proposed to have an automobile campaign of twenty or twenty-five machines to canvass the territory.

Rev. McMichael heads the reception committee; G. H. Hartman, headquarters.

In connection with the chautauqua will be a home coming week relative, friends and former citizens will be invited to spend the week and renew acquaintances. The committee consisting of Karl Ball and L. H. Sullenger will send out special invitations to former citizens inviting their return for the week. To assist in this work the committee asks that all persons who desire relatives and friends who formerly lived here to be invited that their names be plainly written with complete address and sent to the Herald office. Do not fail to do so.

Transferring Box Kites.

The United States experts use box kites in many meteorological experiments, but have hitherto found difficulty in transporting them across the country from one station to another by reason of their shape and size. A novel type has been devised which, by cutting a few strings and loosening four bolts, permits the kite to be knocked down into flat, compact form, very much like a collapsible box or carton.

College Plans Endowment Increase.

The annual commencement of Cedarville College took place last Friday. Dr. Charles Sumner Brown of the Walnut Hills Baptist church, Cincinnati, being the orator of the day.

The degrees of B. A. were conferred upon the following graduates: Bruce Anderson, Clara Boase, Nancy Finney, Mary Hastings, Ralph Hofmeister, Hazel Lowry, Grace Morton and Edna Stormont. The musical graduates were Helen Ogilvie and Martha Stormont.

Degrees of "D. D." were conferred upon Dr. Brown and Rev. Frederick Lincoln Flinchbaugh, both of Cincinnati, the latter being rector of Calvary Episcopal church.

It is planned to raise $15,000 endowment making the necessary $200,000 to entitle the institution to membership in the state association of colleges. Dr. McKinnay emphasized the fact on the people of this community that it was necessary that the endowment be increased; it not another location would be sought.

Wonderful Set of Dishes.

What is said to be the most costly set of dishes ever made was recently shown at an exhibition in St. Petersburg. It consisted of thirty-six hand-colored plates. This set has an estimated value of $18,540, a single plate, therefore, being worth $515. It is the property of Count Orloff-Davidoff.

WOMEN'S DAY TO BE A FEATURE OF CHAUTAUQUA WEEK.

A FEATURE of all Col-Aber Chautauquas will be Women's Day. On this day all persons on the program are women, lecturers, entertainers and musicians. The big feature of the day will take place in the afternoon a joint debate on Woman Suffrage—a subject that at this period of our political development interests men as well as women. The advocate for woman's suffrage is Mrs. Robert M. LaFollette, wife of the famous United States senator from Wisconsin. Mrs. LaFollette is a very able speaker and long has been an earnest advocate for equal suffrage, which she considers but one of the features of a great program for equal rights for all. She has often spoken with Senator LaFollette in his campaigns, both state and national. Mrs. LaFollette's opponent will be Miss Lucy Price of Cleveland, secretary of the Ohio Anti-Suffrage Association, and one of the ablest speakers against woman suffrage. She has spoken in campaigns in Ohio and other states, as well as before congressional committees recently when the woman's suffrage bills were being considered. That both sides of this question will be ably presented is a foregone conclusion. The evening program will be no less interesting than that of the afternoon. Mrs. Glendower Evans of Boston will speak on "An Interview at the White House," or "Equality of Opportunity." She is one of America's greatest woman orators as well as one of our noblest women. She is a wealthy woman and is genuinely interested in helping to work out in our country a truer democracy with actual equality of opportunity. She was among the first to recognize the responsibility of wealth for the way in which dividends are earned, as well as for the way in which income is spent. It is along these lines she will speak. Mrs. LaFollette, alas, will speak again in the evenings, though brief. The musical programs, both afternoon and evening, will be furnished by the Bohannans, two versatile New York artists.

Paint is liquid money. You spread it over your house and then sun, wind, rain and dust beat upon it in the effort to wear it out and get at the wood. Bye and bye you have to do it all over again—but less often with

It costs more to put on a poor paint than a good one. Use the paint that lasts longest.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By O. E. SELLERS, Director of Evening Department The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

LESSON FOR JUNE 14

THE FRIEND OF SINNERS.

LESSON TEXT.—Luke 13:1-14; 19:1-10. GOLDEN TEXT.—"I came not to call the righteous but sinners." Mark 2:17.

The first section of our lesson is the beginning of a new paragraph (see R. V.) and contains one of the Master's best-known parables. Immediately preceding this is the parable of the unjust judge and the importunate widow. We are plainly told (v. 9) why the Master spoke this parable. It is easy to say that those who trusted in their own righteousness and "set all others at naught" (R. V.) were the Pharisees, but such is not the case; and this parable is a warning to us, lest we also trust our own righteousness (Isa. 64:6). Using this particular class as a background, Jesus paints, in words of simple grandeur, a picture quite familiar throughout the ages. In it he reveals the falseness of human standards and declares the judgment of heaven. The contrast is vivid. Let us look at (1) the Pharisee. The illuminating phrase is in the words "he prayed with himself" (v. 11). Ostentatiously the Pharisee separated himself from his fellow men and this separation seems to have extended even into his prayer life, and he is withdrawn from God also. This is an appalling picture of the man who trusts only himself. Examine his prayer and we see the supposed prayer is really a pious of self-exaltation.

Humility of Heart.
(2) The Pharisee regarded himself as "the sinner" (v. 13 R. V. margin). He knew he was a sinner, an irredeemable offender against grace. He had sacrificed everything to acquire money. He comes with no outward show except an abundant evidence of the shame and humility of his heart. He also was excluded from men but not from God. Burdened with the sense of his sin, God. He is absolutely devoid of any trust in himself, any contempt for others, and makes a straight, earnest, passionate abandonment of himself and his need to God. He goes away "justified" (judged right). Why? Because he had taken the right attitude toward his place before God, and found pardon.

II. The Second Section is a story and deals with an individual case, Zaccheus, who was a "chief Publican." Jesus sought him (see Golden Text), whereas Zaccheus was animated by curiosity, and the writer informs us he was angry at the thought, hence the necessity of climbing the sycamore tree. He went up the tree because of curiosity, he came down because of conviction. He wanted to see this man in the center of the crowd and was amazed to hear Jesus call him by name.

Must Yield Wealth.
Zaccheus was rich, dishonest, dissatisfied, but desperately in earnest, and a man of prompt decision. The estimation of his fellow-citizens is indicated by v. 7. Notwithstanding all of this Zaccheus was not so wedded to his money as to let it keep him out of the kingdom. In chapter 18 we read of the rich man who "lacked one thing." He was lost—"went away"—because he would not yield his wealth (see also 18:26, 27). What took place within the house of Zaccheus we are not told, but for the Master to enter was looked upon either as a warning of ignorance of Zaccheus' character or else extreme carelessness concerning the maintenance of his own character. Jesus was dealing with one man, not the multitude, hence he leaves them to their amazement. While this is true, yet we can surmise something of that interview by the result (v. 8) for Zaccheus seems to have made a public avowal of his ethical and moral change of heart. Note the steps: (1) He "sought to see Jesus." John 3:14, 15; Isa. 45:22. (2) He was very much in earnest, "climbed a sycamore tree." Luke 13:24. (3) He made no delay, "make haste" Isa. 55:6. The result was that of great blessing to the people and joy in the heart of Zaccheus. (4) He was obedient, joyously and promptly. The genuineness of his transformation was evidenced by the way it affected his pocketbook. He made abundant restitution and gave bountifully to the poor. The love of God shed abroad in the heart of a miserly, selfish man or church will promote honesty both to God and man.

From the combined parable and story we can read the lesson that Jesus is the friend of sinners and not of sin.
Thus the friend of sinners seeks and saves men. He sees the acts and the attitude of men and is ready to justify those whose attitude is that of humility and supplication. He seeks men even as he sought Zaccheus, and as he saves he produces in them those fruits of righteousness which are the evidence and demonstration of their salvation. The scribes and the Pharisees saw Jesus eating with the publicans and expressed this disapproving surprise only to receive his rebuke. "They that are whole have no need of a physician, but they that are sick: I came not to call the righteous."

PRAISES LYCEUM AND CHAUTAUQUA

Norman Hapgood, in Harper's Weekly, Commends Them.

REPRESENT NEW FREEDOM

Declarer Spirit Manifested at Great Seasonal Gatherings of People Made President Wilson and Secretary Bryan Possible—Defends Latter's Action in Preaching to the Masses in Face of Bitter Newspaper Criticism.

Our forthcoming Chautauqua, which will be held next summer, extends over five days, makes all matters pertaining to the Chautauqua of interest to our readers. In a recent issue of Harper's Weekly appeared a two-page article about the Lyceum and Chautauqua, in which the writer set forth the most able defense of Bryan's lecturing that has so far appeared in print. This is the article in part: The Lyceum and the New Freedom. The Chautauqua and the Lyceum represent the New Freedom. They are one of the chief sources of the spirit that makes both Wilson and Bryan possible. They are great seasonal gatherings of the common people for rest, for fun, for common thinking. And more effective thinking has been done there than in all the editorial rooms of all the newspapers put together. And more "news" is made there—new news, I mean—ideas, new-fashioned news. There is freedom there; free thought; free speech, and some day there may be a free people there.

Mr. Bryan knows all this. When he was defeated for the presidency—both times—the newspapers pronounced him dead, politically, and they proceeded to kill him. The Germans have a good word for what they did: "Totgeschweigen." They set out to "kill" him. They would report nothing that he said or did, and he might have been killed and forgotten. But the Lyceums and the Chautauqua said: "No. There is still some freedom of speech in this country. Come and talk to the people." And he went, and he lectured, and "the rats" heard him gladly. They not only heard, they paid him for the service, so that he could not only preach, he could live.

Helping. If you are not helping the Chautauqua, you are guilty of one of the worst sins in the category—that of indifference toward a great public demand. For there is an insistent demand for a moral and religious association broader than the sectarian church, closer to the needs of the people and more in touch with modern ideals and the new education. Help along. Don't forget that your way of thinking counts, even though you may not be able to do much in actual service.

A STORY OF 1925

By F. A. MITCHEL

The nineteenth century, so prolific in inventions and discoveries, laid the foundation for some remarkable steps in knowledge of the functions of the body. During the first decade of the twentieth experiments in institutions for original research became aware that there was an intermediate state between life and death, since life in many organisms could be suspended, by being frozen in liquid air and afterward resuscitated.

It was found that bacteria, the lowest plant organisms, have enormous powers of resisting death. Bacteria of various diseases were frozen in liquid air at a temperature of minus 300 degrees F. There are instances of the lives of frogs, rats, snails and fish being suspended by this freezing process, yet on being "thawed out" after several weeks they revived.

These animals were found to be perfectly normal when placed in a refrigerator jar filled with liquid air at a certain temperature. After a short time the animals appeared lifeless. A month later they were removed and on being massaged showed signs of life, often reviving completely.

It does not appear that these investigators made experiments with human beings. Doubtless human beings objected to being thrust into a glass tank filled with liquid air 300 degrees below zero.

Since then there has been no effort to discover whether human beings could be frozen and brought to life.

In 1885 a party of tourists started from the town of Chamoni, in Switzerland, by the old route to climb Mont Blanc, the railroad to the summit not then having been built. One of the guides, Hans Tvingle, twenty years old, was to be married on his return to Anna Bischof, three years his junior.

The lovers, in the first freshness of youth, bade each other goodbye, the girl in tears, for she had dreamed that she had been separated from Hans till she was an old woman near sixty, when she met him again, he being a youth of twenty. At that age he had no sympathy for an old woman and turned his back upon her. At the parting she feared that her dream boded some trouble either for her lover or herself.

And so it did. When the party turned to Chamoni, Hans Tvingle was not with them. He had fallen into a crevasse on the glacier hundreds of feet deep, and no effort was made to recover his body. The glacier moves at such a rate that it would bring Hans' body down to a point where the ice would give it up in exactly four years. Anna Bischof, though she married, all her life hoped that she would live to look once more on the lover of her youth when he should be returned from his icy grave.

A few years ago Dr. Donenbumer, an investigator of the Institute for Original Research, went to Chamoni, and heard the story of Hans and Anna. He found the latter an old woman and on questioning her as to the date that Hans had disappeared learned that the body was due to come forth from the glacier during the summer of the year 1925. On the 1st of July last the doctor went over to Chamoni and wait for the appearance of the body. He did not reveal his purpose, since it seemed so quixotic that he feared derision. It was to determine with the assistance of the latest scientific methods whether Hans was dead or in the suspensory state and, if the latter, whether he could be brought to life.

It was late in September before Hans' body appeared. Dr. Donenbumer had revealed his intention to the deceased and he had given his permission to resuscitate him. He had secured a bathtub, which he filled with water at 33 degrees, or one degree above the freezing point. He placed the body in this tub and gradually advanced the temperature, massaging the thorax about the heart and extending the operation over the whole body.

A record of what further expedients the scientist resorted to he turned over to his institute, where they are on file. Doubtless they would be too professional to be given here. The point I wish to mention especially is how his former sweetheart's dream came true. When Hans, still a man of twenty, had been restored Anna, attended by her granddaughter, was introduced to the man whom she was to marry. Hans sprang up, brushed by his former sweetheart, nearly knocking her over, and, throwing his arms around the granddaughter, exclaimed:

"Anna, dear heart, I am back with you in time for our wedding! I was in hibernation!" exclaimed the old woman. "My dream has come true! He sprang me!"

"What is the old hag saying?" queried Hans.

"Old hag?" whined Anna. Then, losing control of herself, she seized a broom standing in a corner and belabored him unmercifully.

Dr. Donenbumer blames himself for a scene that was too much for a heart that had been frozen forty years. He did all in his power to bring Hans back to life a second time, but his efforts were futile.

The incident had a singular effect upon the granddaughter, who was but seventeen years old and not prepared for such a strain. She accused her grandmother of having murdered Hans. The people of Chamoni say that the girl gave her heart to a man old enough to be her grandfather.

HAS NOT MISSED DAY AT WORK FOR QUARTER CENTURY

TELEPHONE CONDUIT INSPECTOR HAS PERFECT RECORD OF ALL DAYS.

DUTIES REQUIRE HIM TO WALK TEN MILES DAILY

Hale and Hearty at Fifty-seven, R. J. Barrett Says He Never Wanted a Vacation.

On the job every day for a quarter of a century! Such is the perfect record of Robert J. Barrett of Chicago. County Clerk never sent forth a son who was more hale and hearty at the age of fifty-seven.

"Every day" doesn't mean "every day but Sunday." It means seven days a week—Sundays and holidays, feast days and fast days, rain or shine. He walks a seldom a day in which he walks less than ten miles in the performance of his duties. A perfect record for twenty-five years—and no one is more proud of it than Mr. Barrett.

Mr. Barrett is the pioneer—the original pioneer—in his calling. He is an "inspector of underground conduits." The first telephone conduits underground in the west were laid in Chicago in 1880 and he helped install them.

Guards Telephone Wires. A "conduit inspector" is the guardian of underground telephones wires. In cities where there are complicated systems of underground wires it is not surprising that workmen are cautioned occasionally. In Chicago there are more than 600 miles of subway for telephone wires alone. The inspector prevents confusion by permitting none except those with written authority to touch the telephone wires. Occasionally men have been caught in the manholes where access to the underground ducts is gained, who for lack of a better name are called "wire thieves." For the benefit of all such strange visitors the inspector wears a star.

Mr. Barrett was Chicago's first "conduit inspector." No man knows Chicago's down town subways like he does. For a quarter of a century they have been his daily companions. He now makes the rounds every day, going part way on the street car and observing the manholes from the platform of the car. Although "his territory" is not much greater than three square miles, the wire mileage within that area is not exceeded within a similar area anywhere in the world. He has friends by the hundreds, but there are few if any who know that the genial, big hearted son of Erin holds a record of faithfulness in service that is seldom equaled.

"Have you never been sick?" he was asked.

"Sick, is it? And sure I can't remember the last time I was sick," was his good natured reply.

Attacked by Thieves. But he confessed he had two "accidents." Once he dropped the heavy iron cover of a manhole on his toes. He had to "be aye on 'em for a couple of days," but that was twenty years ago. Another time when he had captured a couple of wire thieves in a manhole and was about to slam the door on the captives, a "lady friend" of the captives stabbed Mr. Barrett in the back with a hatpin in her attempt to help the men escape. However, the men didn't escape.

The hatpin incident made him a little reticent. He recalled the time when he caught three men stealing telephone cable from a manhole downtown in Chicago. They were fined $10 and costs each after an encounter in which he arrested all three. Two other thieves gave him a close call.

He found them in a manhole. They were working for the city and added emphasis to their remarks with a piece of gas pipe, which Mr. Barrett said he could still hear "singin'" past his ears.

Never Wanted Vacation. Mr. Barrett says he has never taken a vacation because he never wanted one. The out-of-door life has kept him strong and vigorous, and at the age of fifty-seven he feels just as active as ever. He is the father of eleven children, of whom eight are living.

Like all pioneers, Mr. Barrett has a fondness for telling of the days that were.

"I can well remember," he said, how I dug post holes on State street over thirty years ago for the Western Union. And, with native wit he added, "I worked for the Chicago Telephone Company before it was the Chicago Telephone Company."

Loyalty never found a more welcome spot than in the heart of Robert Barrett, conduit inspector.

SOON TO TALK 3,000 MILES. The first 3,000-mile long distance telephone conversation will be held during the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915. The Denver-to-San Francisco section of the Bell long distance route from New York to the Golden Gate has reached the heart of the Rockies and is expected to be in use in 1915. The transcontinental through-line, built of one ton of copper and modern telephone equipment for every mile, will be one of the greatest achievements of the age.
